

Breakout group session 1- SWOT analysis

In the context of One Health in your individual institution, within your breakout groups, and more broadly in the Una Europa collaboration, consider and discuss the follow points:

Strengths and Weaknesses

- What do your institutions/Una Europa do well in one health? Are there any collective strengths within this breakout group?
- In what areas of OH research and teaching, does your institution/Una Europa perhaps need to improve or could benefit from collaboration and new partners? Are there collective areas of weakness that could be/need to be addressed by other institutions within Una Europa?
- What are One Health areas where there is a lot of knowledge in your institution/Una Europa? Are there overlaps of areas of expertise within this group?
- What organisational strengths or weaknesses are there in how One Health is approached by your institutions/Una Europa (e.g. is there a strong central team with lots of support?)
- Are there any resource limitations to One Health teaching/research at your institution/Una Europa?
- What strengths do your institution/Una Europa have around One Health in an international context? Are there any gaps which could be strengthened by this partnership?

Opportunities and Challenges

- What opportunities and challenges are there regarding a focus or expansion of One Health activities collectively within this breakout group or the wider Una Europa alliance?
- What collaborations for One Health research and teaching might be possible within this group?
- Is the current pandemic/political environment affecting what One Health opportunities there are in your institution/Una Europa?

Breakout Group session 2- writing topics

In future workshops, we build meaningful opportunities for collaboration. Based on your earlier discussions, what areas of collaboration which may form the basis for a joint position paper, blog, grant opportunity? Some example topics are suggested below to start the conversation:

- Defining a One Health approach to security and sustainable development · Role of the humanities in developing One Health solutions
- Exploring One Health in the context of colonial and post-colonial legacies · Resolving tensions between local and 'global' approaches to One Health
- Defining One Health policy and challenges with implementation
- Measuring and evaluating impact of a One Health approach
